VDM Verlag Feb 2010, 2010. Taschenbuch. Book Condition: Neu. 220x150x6 mm. Neuware - Photons are real massless time-stable and spatially finite physical objects with an intrinsically compatible translational-rotational dynamical structure. They carry energy-momentum and propagate as a whole in a translational-rotational periodic manner by the speed of light. The corresponding integral action for one period T is given by the Planck constant ' $h = ET$ ', where ' E ' is the full energy of the photon, and all photons carry the same intrinsic action ' h '. Photons are composite objects, each one consists of two time recognizable and energy-momentum exchanging subsystems carrying the same stress-energy-momentum and being in a state of dynamical equilibrium. The exchanged energy for one period gives the elementary action ' h '. Photons follow the rule: no translation is possible without rotation, and no rotation is possible without translation. The adequate mathematics we came to was Frobenius integrability/nonintegrability theory of distributions.
