So far from iU being Colonel Torrent doc.trine, that corn grown in Australia for domestic purpose will, on an average, in the case of the application of equal quantities of labour, yield SO per cent, lest profit than wcol, that he has expressly laid it down (p. 156), that if the staple of Australia commands, in relation to its producing labour, SO per cent, more than the staple of Canada, then the principle of competition will cause all the products of Australian labour to bear a higher price by SO per cent, than the corresponding portion of Canadian labour. The doctrine of Colonel Torrens is, iu fact, so directly the converse of that which has been unfairly imputed to him, and the conclusions of the Review are altoget it so dependent on the validity of these premises, tl.at we have, in.feet, exposed the fallacy of...
